UD SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION
INDUCTS FIRST MEMBERS INTO HONOR SOCIETY

DAYTON, Ohio, April 9, 1984 -- On Wednesday, April 11, at 6 p.m. at the Dayton Marriott Hotel, the University of Dayton School of Business Administration will induct its first members into Beta Gamma Sigma, the national scholastic honor society in the field of business administration. This opportunity for induction is made possible by the recent accreditation of the UD School of Business Administration by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB).

The purpose of Beta Gamma Sigma is to encourage and reward scholarship and accomplishment among students of business and administration, to promote the advancement of education in the art and science of business, and to foster integrity in the conduct of business operations.

The University will honor and induct a number of distinguished business leaders, including Robert E. Frazer, chairman and chief executive officer of the Dayton Power and Light Company, Maurice F. Krug, chairman and chief executive officer of Technology, Inc., and Jesse Philips, chairman and chief executive officer of Philips Industries. In addition, there will be 38 master of business administration students inducted, 47 undergraduate students, and 12 UD faculty members.

Membership in Beta Gamma Sigma is an honor which must be earned through outstanding scholarship, and is one of the highest honors a business student can attain. Those eligible for induction must rank in either the top five percent of their junior class, the top 10 percent of their senior class, or the top 20 percent of those students receiving masters degrees. Honorary members are chosen for their outstanding contributions to the business community, as well as their emphasis on scholarship and the advancement of education in the art and science of business. School of Business Administration faculty who have been teaching at UD for three years or more are also eligible to join Beta Gamma Sigma.

Founded in 1913, Beta Gamma Sigma presently has over 200 chapters which induct over 12,000 student members annually. Its total membership is approximately 185,000.
